DRESS FOR SUCCESS

TIPS FOR LANDING YOUR FIRST JOB

Whether you're looking for a summer job, permanent part-time job, or a full-time position after graduation, spring is the ideal time to start lining up your next employment opportunity. Once you've submitted your applications and have landed your first job interview, consider these simple tips to help you ace the interview process and land your dream job:

- Always make sure you know a little (or a lot!) about your potential employer. Visit their website and browse through important tabs, like their "About Us" section. Do a little online searching to see if the company was in the news recently. This will help you show an eagerness and interest to help set you apart from other candidates who don't know anything about the company.
- Arrive at the interview prepared to show examples of how you've worked out a problem, what the results were, and how the steps you took to address the problem worked (or didn't work) it out. If you've never had a job before, you can use school, community, or family-related examples.
- Dressing for success often leaves a positive lasting impression, so if you're interviewing in person, put time and effort into looking the part. Likewise, pay attention to your body language, staying focused, and being engaged with your interviewer.
- Most importantly, be yourself! This is your opportunity to show the company why they need you and your specific talents and contributions. There's nobody else like you!
